2018-2019 Housing Updates for Current Students:

November 1, 2017:

This Fall the University welcomed the largest incoming class size yet. That growth is expected to continue in Fall 2018, which means that we expect our on-campus housing options in Heritage Commons to be limited for upper-class students (sophomores, juniors, and seniors). Housing & Residential Education (HRE) is aware that many of our students who currently live on campus may want to continue living on campus for the next Academic Year (2018-2019), therefore we are exploring a variety of options in an effort to accommodate this demand. This means that HRE may potentially engage with a housing community on or off campus to provide an additional living community for upper-class students. We will have more information available by early December 2017 in order for students to make a well informed decision about their housing plan for the next academic year (Fall 2018- Spring 2019).

The success of all students at the University of Utah is a priority for HRE, so it is our commitment to explore and consider every possibility for making additional housing available for upper-class students. At this point in time, we are simply making residents in our communities aware of what types of changes may be forthcoming next year and assuring you that we will explore all options to identify how we can best support you and aid in your success as a University of Utah student. Please note that if you are going to be an upper-class student (a sophomore, junior, or senior) in the Fall of 2018 this update is applicable to you, and we will be following up with you via email to ensure you receive this update. If you are going to be an upper-class student and you have a scholarship affiliated with on-campus housing, you will receive a separate email with corresponding details.
